

2004 Westwind GNARLY

Our most gnarly of Zinfandels is specially selected from our World War II era vineyard blocks. Almost chewy with a brooding intensity, this creamy, toasted vanilla oak elixir is the Guinness® of Zins, with deep flavors of black licorice and black cherry, followed by the lingering finish of a great espresso from Rome. Not for the faint of heart.

The Spenger Harvester. Joseph is to the right of the large six foot wheel, Jessie is on the horse. Lodi was the largest wheat producer in the late 1800's.

About Jessie's Grove Winery

Jessie's Grove Winery is nestled between the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta and the foothills of the Sierra Nevada in Lodi, the perfect environment for growing premium wine grapes and producing world-class wines. Lodi enjoys a Mediterranean climate with warm days, cool nights, and a soft bay delta breeze.

Jessie's father, Joseph, came to the Lodi area in the 1860's in search of land "where the oak trees grew the tallest." The oak grove, ranch, and winery have been named in honor of Joseph's daughter, Jessie, a natural environmentalist of the 1800's, who set aside a 32-acre oak-covered parcel and rejected all opportunities to develop the grove.

Except for the addition of modern stainless steel tanks, the winery authentically preserves the feel of the ranch in the 1800's, including some of the original Zinfandel vines planted by Jessie in the 1890's, still harvested for our best wine. Some of the Zinfandel vineyards have been named after the family-owned horses that roam the pastures within the vineyards. Our Westwind and Royal Tee are such examples of the "other members" of the Jessie's Grove family. Even today, the winery and ranch continue to be a family operation, from the caring of the ancient vineyards to hosting of the annual Groovin' in the Grove summer Rhythm and Blues live concert series.
